Quantum Advisory announce expansion of its London Investment Team and relocation to new offices

Quantum Advisory, the leading independent financial services consultancy, today announced the expansion of its London based investment consulting team and the relocation of the team to new offices in Old Bailey. Kara Newcombe has been appointed as a Senior Investment Consultant and joins the team from Broadstone. Ben Amenya has joined as an Investment Consultant from XPS.

Amanda Burdge, Partner and Head of Investment, said: “Following a sustained period of growth in investment work within the South East, the decision to expand our London team was an easy one to make. We are delighted to welcome Kara and Ben to the team. Their depth of skills and knowledge will help us to continue to deliver an expanding range of services to our existing clients and enable us to maximise new business opportunities as they arise.”

Rhidian Williams, Partner and Head of London, said “With the London team’s continued expansion it was time to look for a new office. After a significant change in the world of work over the last two years our new home now also reflects our efficient hybrid working arrangements whilst offering clients a flexible, safe meeting space. We are pleased to welcome Kara and Ben to the team and new office, and look forward to meeting all of our London based clients here during 2022.”

Kara has a BSc in Statistics from the University of Bath, a Masters in Statistics from the University of London and is also a Fellow of the Institute and Faculty of Actuaries. After four years at the Government Actuary’s Department Kara moved into investment consulting with Broadstone, where she worked for ten years.

Ben has a BSc in Economics and a Masters in Financial Economics from the University of London. He also holds the Chartered Financial Analyst designation.

After five years in the British Army Ben moved into Investment Consulting, working with Alexander Forbes, JLT and latterly XPS.
